

STAGING 101: CAST B 2012

"I regard the theatre as the greatest of all art forms, the most immediate way in which a human being can share with another the sense of what it is to be a human being." - Oscar Wilde

The day has come for Up with People students to embark on the adventure of a lifetime. The waiting is over, the forms are submitted, the checks are deposited, the excitement builds. The bags are packed, the families and friends hugged, the goodbyes said, and the hopes and dreams each cast member has in their hearts have yet to be realized.

A semester full of exciting travel, new friends, unique experiences and a mind expanded with different opportunities, emotions, learning, seeing and giving awaits each student as they arrive in Denver, Colorado in July.

This is the Orientation and Staging of Cast B 2012! A magical, exhausting, fun-filled five weeks where 82 students from 17 countries gain valuable knowledge about Up with People, meet the staff who will be guiding them on their semester-long adventure and learn the music, lyrics and dance steps to the new Up with People show that is debuting with Cast B 2012. Senior Vice President and Executive Producer Eric Lentz noted, "B12, much like the vitamin, is full of energy. They are eager to learn the new show, and are excited and nervous to be the first cast involved in this creative process and have their voices heard across the globe. The anticipation for the first vocal and movement sessions was palpable, and the cast did not disappoint!"

Each weekday morning, the students gather at the Pinnacle, the high school performing arts center where UWP's staging takes place. This is the place where 15 languages will be spoken and understood, where students from 17 countries and 14 U.S. states meet each other, exchange names and soak up all the new sights and sounds, where stories are shared, where 82 voices harmonize, where 164 feet learn dance steps, where for nine hours a day, five days a week, students learn the show production, UWP procedures and the history and future of Up with People.

A YEARN TO LEARN: FLORIDA SOUTHERN COLLEGE & UP WITH PEOPLE

Up with People is excited to welcome 12 study abroad students to a semester of college classes taught by Florida Southern College. The Cast B members hail from China, Colombia, Mexico and the United States. They arrived in Denver one week prior to the rest of the cast for Orientation and Staging and had eight class sessions with their two professors. During this period these college students participated in advanced workshops, extra community service projects and additional learning days. They are also afforded special opportunities while on tour, ranging from more demanding leadership positions within the cast to special educational excursions.

The coursework offered through this program complements the experiential curriculum of the core UWP program and will enrich the student's tour in numerous ways. The Interpersonal Communication class and Intercultural Communication class will focus on how people manage conflict during communicative interactions. The Contemporary Leadership Models course will study leadership styles and techniques, and will help students develop their own leadership preferences.

Students will study and complete coursework during their semester-long tour with Up with People and will receive 12 upper-level college credits that can transfer to another U.S. home institution. This Up with People education program allows students to take their UWP experience to the next level. They encounter new challenges that will expand their global awareness and refine their professional development skills. With this cooperative partnership with Florida

Southern College, Up with People expects more students to take advantage of the academic offerings in the future. In January 2013, the UWP team will temporarily relocate staging operations to Lakeland, Florida, and welcome Cast A 2013 to staging and orientation on the beautiful campus of Florida Southern College.

This is not a permanent relocation of staging; however, due to the fact that the U.S. portion of the 2013 tour begins in Florida, and UWP's new partnership with FSC, the opportunity makes business and operational sense. We look forward to taking advantage of the many amenities offered by the Lakeland / Orlando area, and to continuing the growth of our partnership with FSC and Lakeland, Florida.

"Sometimes when one door closes, another one opens." There is something very honest in such a simple statement, but that is just the kind of person that Clyde Foxhall is...honest.

Clyde, or "Clyde from Cleveland" as the cast calls him, couldn't be more excited to be a part of the Up with People Cast B 2012! Raised in the inner city of Cleveland, Clyde always remembers being surrounded by music. "Music is my life." He has been playing the piano as far back as he can remember, and he also enjoys playing the drums. Although Clyde's life is filled with music, and he excels at playing and reading music, he came into this world with a couple of complications.

Clyde was born without a bone in the thumb of his right hand and the fingers on his left hand had never fully developed. When he was just a baby, doctor's amputated his right hand thumb and moved his pointer finger so that it could function as his thumb. The scars on his hand are the only visible memories of Clyde's struggle as a young boy. "I used to think that everyone noticed it right away, but surprisingly, no one really does."

Throughout high school, Clyde had his heart set on joining the military once he turned 18. He knew he wanted to be an aviation mechanic, and had narrowed the decision down to a choice between the Navy and Army. He participated in various programs to help prepare him for a career in the military, and many recruiters told him that his hands wouldn't be a problem; when both the Army and the Navy told him he couldn't join because of his hands, he was devastated.

That's where Up with People comes into the picture. Cast A 2012 performed at Clyde's high school, and he was able to audition and start the admissions process immediately. Just as he was being told he couldn't join the military, Up with People called to say he had been accepted. "This is a really great place for me because it combines everything that I love. I have never traveled before but it is always something that I wanted to do. I love people and learning about new cultures."

Clyde is one of 12 students participating in Up with People's new academic program with Florida Southern College. This exciting new program offers students the opportunity to earn 12 credit hours while traveling the world with Up with People. "College was never really on my mind, but having this opportunity to travel with Up with People and earn college credit has really made me excited."

When asked how life with his Denver host family is going, Clyde's eyes lit up. "I really think that my host family is the way a host family should be." Clyde's host father is a journalist, and they spend many nights having long conversations about history and the world in general; it's extremely apparent that Clyde is fascinated with stories about the world, and his excitement to learn is contagious. This self proclaimed, "school ambassador" is an exciting addition to Cast B 2012. I think Clyde says it best, "When one door closes, another door opens. And here I am!"
